

A Moment of Change

🕒 Read 4 minutes

Employees thrive with choice. As teams expand and business units shift, the traditional, one-size-fits-all office often struggles to keep pace. Employees today need more than just a desk; they need environments that offer genuine choice, support diverse work styles and adapt as their needs evolve.

And the data backs it up – Steelcase research shows that offices that are designed with a variety of spaces that accommodate diverse work styles achieve higher employee satisfaction. Employees who have access to unassigned desks but can also choose from a variety of different types of spaces achieved a high score of 79 on the Leesman Employee Experience Index*.

The challenge for leaders is clear: how do you create a workspace that delivers the flexibility, wellbeing, and efficiency your people need to thrive, while working within the realities of space constraints?

The Solution

LexCo Alexis meets this challenge head-on, working within the same footprint as traditional workstations to reimagine what's possible when space is treated as a constraint worth designing for.

- Designed to flex: Its modular frame and surfaces scale with team and organizational needs, giving more choice without needing to expand the footprint of a traditional desk.
- Built for connection: Layouts encourage collaboration while preserving privacy and focus, making every square meter work harder.
- Supportive by design: Sit-to-stand options and ergonomic details promote wellbeing across diverse workstyles.
- Ready for tomorrow: With responsibly sourced materials and recyclable components, Alexis aligns with ESG goals and long-term value creation.

Built for Growth, Designed for People

LexCo Alexis is shaped by how people naturally move through their day. It supports transitions. It allows people to move easily from focused work to informal collaboration; from sitting to standing. This responsiveness helps individuals to stay energised and engaged, while enabling organisations to make better use of every square meter.

By aligning workspace design with human rhythms, Lexco Alexis fosters environments where wellbeing and productivity reinforce each other. Together it can create value for both employee and organization.

Discover how LexCo Alexis can support your workplace.

Frequent Asked Questions

Q1: How can organisations improve ROI during workplace relocation?

By maximizing space efficiency and supporting multiple work modes within one system, LexCo Alexis reduces the need for a wide range of separate furniture products and delivers long-term value.

Q2: How can employee experience be supported during and after relocation?

With collaborative workstations, ergonomic features and integrated privacy, LexCo Alexis enhances engagement, wellbeing, and productivity across diverse teams.

Q3: How can workplaces remain adaptable to future change?

LexCo Alexis offers modular scalability, enabling organisations to reconfigure layouts easily in response to growth, hybrid adoption or cultural shifts.

Q4: How can workplace design align with sustainability commitments?

Built with responsibly sourced materials and designed for recyclability, LexCo Alexis supports enterprise ESG goals while lowering lifecycle costs.

The Leesman Index assesses employees' experience within their workplace, indicating how well the office design supports work activities and their sense of pride, productivity and community at work.*