

Teamwork Reimagined: Making Room for Collaboration

How can we make space for better teamwork?

🕒 Read 4 minutes

High-performing teams thrive in environments that adapt with them. As organizations evolve their approach to hybrid work, space has become a key factor in whether collaboration feels natural or forced.

According to Steelcase research, only 25% of leaders are satisfied with office attendance. One key reason? Collaborative spaces no longer align with how teams actually work.

Instead of one large meeting room or scattered desk clusters, teams need an interconnected set of spaces. Places for deep focus, quick syncs, and hybrid collaboration that don't require advance booking or a complete change of scenery.

Environments That Support Team Flow

Be my guest® offers a systemized approach to enabling teamwork. Not only does it help bring people together, it ensures that when they do gather, the space supports their goals without distraction.

```
<ol> <li></li> </ol>
```

Teams need more than just a desk and a chat app. They need spaces that support seamless transitions between work modes, help build momentum, and keep them connected, no matter where they are.

Learn more about Be my guest® or speak with our team to plan your next move.

Be my guest®

Find out more

