- Steelcase was a founding member of the U.S. EPS Green Power Partnership.
- Steelcase conducts independent, third-party social accountability audits of suppliers around the world with Environmental Resources Management.
- We're a member of the U.S. Green Buildings Council.
- Steelcase received a gold award in product stewardship from US EPA Waste-Wise in 2007. This was the third consecutive year EPA has recognized our product steward efforts, and the sixth consecutive year Waste-Wise has recognized Steelcase for our efforts.
- We develop and sponsor international environmental education events such as the 2005 Green by Design Sustainability Symposium, as well as conferences and continuing education courses for architects and designers.
- All business stationery, globally, is made of post-consumer recycled paper.
- Steelcase added hybrid SUV's to its North American car selection options for our sales team.
- Steelcase conducted the industry's first testing for the impact of office furniture on air quality more than 20 years ago.

- Steelcase products have been certified as low emitting under ANSI/BIFMA furniture emissions standard. Steelcase is using Scientific Certification Systems (SCS) as the independent certification agency to provide our third party certification. The US Green Building Council has accepted the ANSI/BIFMA method and criteria as meeting the requirements for LEED CI Indoor Environmental Quality Credit 4.5 low emitting furniture, accepted by the US GBC in 2006.
- Steelcase's wood purchasing policy gives preference to forests independently certified as sustainable. As well, we monitor endangered species lists and only use woods that are not endangered or considered questionable.
- Steelcase uses a particle-board made of 100% recycled wood fiber content.
- We offer customers options to eliminate or minimize waste by providing blanket-wrapping, reusable containers and lightweight cardboard in packaging.
- We are committed to being 100% PVC-free by 2012.

- Steelcase metal finishing operations are 100% VOC-free.
- In 2007, Steelcase converted our wood finishing processes to a water-based system called "Clarity". The introduction of this water-based process now allows us to further reduce the environmental impact of our manufacturing processes and to achieve low emitting product certification for standard wood products.
- Our wood finishing operation in Michigan is targeting 100% water based by end of 2006.

- Since 1990, Steelcase has reduced hazardous waste generation by 99%.
- Our North American operation recycles more than 35,600 tons of steel annually.
- Steelcase Canada was recognized in 2004 by the Recycling Council of Ontario for its waste minimization efforts.
- All product development teams follow a product development process – environmental goals are incorporated in this process, and are an important consideration at every stage of the development process.

While this is a small listing of environmental initiatives we have at Steelcase, we continually strive to improve to meet customer needs and corporate environmental principles. Round

Rectangular

Racetrack

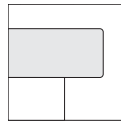

Three top shapes—round, rectangular, and racetrack—are available in a variety of sizes.

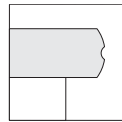

Factory-cut hole for power and communication spheres or ports is available as an option on rectangular and racetrack conference table tops. Spheres and ports must be ordered separately.

Table tops are available in a variety of shapes, materials, and edge profiles to meet your needs.

Panel base is available in contemporary or traditional styles. The traditional panel has wood base trim.

Leveling glides adjust to install tables on uneven floors. Leveling glides are standard on conference tables, but are not available on end, square corner, or rectangular magazine tables.

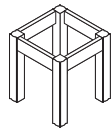

Conference tables are shipped knocked down and assembled in the field. 120"W and 144"W conference table tops are shipped in two pieces. All other conference table tops ship as one piece.

Edge profile options are available for the top of end tables, square corner tables, and rectangular magazine tables.

Two leg options are available—column legs and skirted fluted legs.
