

Share It

Media Wall and Tech Credenza Highlights

As people spend more time in virtual collaboration sessions than in face-to-face interactions, spaces that support hybrid collaboration have become a must. In fact, 56% of all meetings include remote participants, compared to only 44% of meetings taking place in person.

The office has to evolve to facilitate these types of interactions. Private offices, meeting rooms, and conference spaces need to integrate technology that empowers people to connect with ease, regardless of their physical location.

Introducing Share It Media Wall and Tech Credenza

The new Media Wall and Tech Credenza from Share It were intentionally developed to facilitate the integration of technology in enclosed meeting rooms, whether they're executive suites, boardrooms, or collaborative spaces.

Ready for Technology

Both solutions support tech integration without modifying existing architecture and infrastructure. They come technology-ready and provide accessories to help you keep cords out of sight.

The Media Wall supports screen sizes ranging from 43" to 65" and features an optional all-in-one bar for easy cable management.

The Tech Credenza offers the opportunity to install larger screen sizes (above 65") or dual monitor displays.

Easy to Plan With

With the Media Wall and Tech Credenza, traditional meeting rooms and private offices become hybrid collaboration enclaves with minimal effort. They offer multiple heights and depths that fit perfectly in large and small meeting spaces and support a variety of postures.

Modular Design

Modular by design, they can be used as stand-alone solutions or paired with other cabinets and shelves from Share It to create the perfect backdrop for virtual meetings. You can scale the configuration up or down, depending on how much storage or display space you'd like to have. All while maintaining a cohesive design aesthetic.

Already have a Share It solution in your space? Simply add the new Tech Credenza or Media Wall, and you're ready to meet. Looking to add one? Visit our website to contact one of the sales representatives in your region.