

Three Minute Video: ‘Create Spaces Like Workshops’

Are we ready for the disruptive forces of change impacting our working world by the intersection of the digital and physical? Steelcase global design director James Ludwig joined Creative Business Week in Munich to discuss the seismic changes we’ll see over the next decade.

Ludwig says people are rejecting uniformity. Instead, they are looking for inspiration, creativity and human-centered technology that makes life easier instead of more complicated. The future of work will include environments that are interactive, predictive, and growing smarter each day — enhancing people’s experience at work.

“Businesses need to grow, and the way to grow is through ideas,” says Ludwig. The problems organizations are trying to solve today need more than one mind. The workplace needs to support people looking to connect with each other, connect with information and use those connections to create ideas.

In the Creative Business Week discussion, Ludwig talks about creating spaces that are more like workshops than offices reflecting this future of work.

To hear more about the future of work, subscribe to Steelcase 360 Real Time podcasts.

You may also like

Designing the Future of Work with Technology

Designing the Future of Work with Technology II

The Future of Work is Creative

Rebecca Charbauski Senior Communications Specialist

Rebecca, an Emmy-winning journalist, reports on global research impacting the places where people work, learn and heal. Over her career, Rebecca spent 17 years covering local and national news events on television and a variety of digital platforms. She directed a digital news group in Kansas City for three years before becoming news director in Grand Rapids, Michigan for more than five years. Prior to Steelcase, Rebecca worked with one of the four largest media groups in the United States to coordinate news coverage among 48 newsrooms from the east to west coast.

+Customer Care

+Legal Notices

+Connect With Us

+Contact Us

Steelcase

© 1996 - 2022 Steelcase Inc. is a global leader in office furniture, interior architecture and space solutions for offices, hospitals and classrooms. Our furniture is inspired by innovative research in workspace design.