NEEDS ASSESSMENT

A lot of information is needed from an organization during the programming phase of the design process. The Needs Assessment survey helps uncover valuable information that a designer needs to know about adjacencies, technology in the individual workspace, storage, and group / team space needs of an organization.

A lot of information is needed from an organization during the programming phase of the design process.

Steelcase®

For further information, please contact your Steelcase Representative.